Mr. Lansing's Dinner.

Sweet peas and violets made a charming decoration for the table on Monday when Mr. Oliver Lansing entertained at dinner. The rest of the house was adorned with palms and greens and great bowls of shaggy purple asters. Among Mr. Lansing's guests were Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Lansing, Miss Ethel McLain, Mr. and Mrs. Smith of New York, Mrs. Quinn, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bowers of Belvedere and Mr. Martin Grune.

To Announce Engagement

Invitations have been issued for an "at home" at Hale Lanakila this evening to announce the engagement of Miss Mary K. Kong and Charles Corneiro, both of the Star-Bulletin staff. A Hawaiian glee club will furnish music for dancing and refreshments will be served.

Romance of Balkan War

No alliance could be more popular in Greece or Roumania than that which unites these two kingdoms. The crown prince of Greece has won his spurs in both wars, distinguishing himself, especially in that against Bulgaria. His bride-elect, the Princess Elisabeth of Roumania, was an angel of consolation to the wounded and plague-stricken army that assisted the Serbian and Greek forces to win the day. The princess is kind-hearted and gay in temperament. She has golden hair, a rare thing in Roumania, so that she is known among the people as "Sunny Locks."

Nobody was surprised when it was whispered that Crown Prince George of Greece had fallen in love with the radiant apparition that has all but charmed at her feet when she drives her fiery little ponies through the Victoria Canal, smiling and bowing while handling the ribbons in a masterly style, her bright hair flashing in the sun. The princess loves light and joy. She is the soul of children's parties and is an organizer of picnics. Whatever charity work she undertakes she is sure to make pleasant. One of her ideas was to invite a dozen of poor children to the castle of Peleach, royal summer residence of the king and queen of Roumania. She taught them how to frolic in the woods and had them invited to tea by her great aunt, Queen Catherine. The crown prince of Greece, who came to Bucharest to assist at a political conference between Balkan premiers, remained long after all business was concluded, for "Princess Sunny Locks" does not make up her mind all at once. Finally, the young soldier won the day and Greece will some day have one of the most beautiful queens in Europe.

Hilo High School Reception Today.

HILO, March 20.—Principal P. F. Jernekan of the Hilo High School, has issued invitations to the parents and friends of high school students to attend the mid-year reception which will be held there today, beginning at 1:30 o'clock. Besides the usual features and program, which have characterized the receptions in the past, he calls particular attention to an exhibition of articles made by the students which will be on sale at reasonable prices. Among the articles to be exhibited are various styles of book cases, screens, meat safes and taborettes.

Mr. William Phillips was host at an informal studio supper on Tuesday.

Miss Margaret Stewart Forrest, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Forrest of Hilo. Miss Forrest will be married to Robert M. Lindsay, Saturday evening, April 4th.

The reception program is given below:

Song, High School chorus.
Folk dances.
Recitation—"Aunt Ruth's Experience," Kathryn Lyman.
Indian club.
Address—"Old and New Methods in Education," P. F. Jernekan.
Song, High School chorus.
Inspection of domestic science department shop and garden.
Refreshments.

The engagement of Miss Jean Dolz Corstorphine and J. D. Aitken has been announced by Mr. and Mrs. D. Corstorphine, well known residents of Waikeke. Aitken is employed at Olua and has a large acquaintance as he is an active member of the Olua Tennis and Gun clubs.

Society Personals

Mrs. E. M. Watson entertained informally at bridge on Monday for Mrs. Thomas Ahern of Ottawa, her niece, Miss Gwendolyn Darlin of Toronto, Miss Louise Lucas, Mrs. Allan Bottomley, Mrs. Edward Dekum, Miss Julie McStocker and Mrs. William Williamson. The prizes were large bouquets of dainty sweetpeas and went to Mrs. Williamson and Miss Darlin.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl du Roi returned from the East last week and are once more established in their home on Liliha street.

Mr. William Phillips was host at an informal studio supper on Tuesday.

The reception program is given below: evening for Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Agee, Miss Florence Butler, Mr. W. Koop and Mrs. Elsa Cross Howard. Music and dancing occupied the evening, afterwards a number of the guests being most proficient at terpsichorean arts.

Mrs. Herbert O'Brien and her daughter, Miss Mary O'Brien, who have been visiting in Honolulu for the past six weeks, as the guests of Col. and Mrs. F. H. French of Fort Shafter, sailed on the Sonoma yesterday for their home in Detroit.

General and Mrs. Macomb will sail for the mainland on the Wilhelmina March 27th instead of on the transport on the 5th of April. Their friends regret that their departure has been hurried even by a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Lansing entertained informally at a picnic lunch on Sunday at their "camp" on Tantalus. Their guests included Dr. and Mrs. M. E. Grossman, Mrs. E. Shepherd, Miss Dorothy Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Charles L'Hommedieu, Miss Ethel McLain, Mr. George Ahlborn and Mr. Oliver Lansing.

An event that has aroused considerable interest in society is the farce, "All of a Sudden, Peggy," to be given this evening by the junior and senior classes at Punahou. Considerable amateur talent has been displayed by the young actors and actresses, and as the farce is bold, clever and new to Hawaii, the performance should be thoroughly enjoyable.

Little Clarence Murray celebrated his eighth birthday on Thursday by giving a party for twenty or more of his little friends at Waikiki.

Dr. Charles Denner was host at a very attractive dinner on Thursday night at The Courtland, covers being laid for ten. His table was artistically decorated with purple-headed violets and maidenhair.

Mrs. Thomas Ahern of Ottawa was an informal dinner hostess on Wednesday at the Moana Hotel for Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Watson and Mr. and Mrs. Clinton G. Ballentyne. The table was made attractive with dainty clusters of sweet peas and maidenhair fern. After dinner the party whiled away the time watching the dancers, the weekly Moana hop occurring on that night.

Mrs. Faxon Bishop's table on Tuesday was an exquisite affair of orchids and ferns. The luncheon was given in honor of Mrs. J. B. Rentiers, who sails for the Orient next week. Other guests were there to the number of twenty, the list including the more intimate friends of the guest of honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin N. Nold of Pasadena are recent arrivals in Honolulu who plan to spend two or three weeks in this city and at the volcano. Mr. Nold is a prominent businessman of southern California, his wife being equally active in the social world.

Mrs. Henry Waterhouse and Miss Nora Sturgeon entertained informally at tea on Thursday in honor of Mrs. W. S. Carr and Miss Marjorie Carr of Cleveland.

Mr. J. H. Thompson entertained at an elaborate pot luncheon in honor of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Thos. E. Cook, who returned to her home in Hilo by the Mauna Kea. The house was beautifully decorated in green and yellow. Covers were laid for twelve.

Mrs. G. F. Humbert, who was operated on for appendicitis, a fortnight

JUNIOR-SENIOR PLAY AT OAHU THIS EVENING

All is ready for the Junior-Senior play, "All of a Sudden, Peggy," which is to be given by the same classes of Oahu College tonight in Charles R. Bishop Hall. The greater part of the tickets have been sold, and from the looks of things at present the students will have a good house.

The last rehearsals of the play indicate that it will be one of the best given by the students of Oahu College in a number of years. Those who are taking part have done remarkably well of late and those in charge are well pleased with the way everything has turned out.

Ernest Heene's stringed orchestra has some good songs ready to render and with Albert Smith at the piano end of the performance should prove one of the biggest features. This orchestra is composed of eight instruments, besides the piano, in the hands of the most talented mandolin, guitar, ukulele and violin players in the school.

The performance will begin at 8:15 sharp.

at Fort Snatter and once more established at her home at Fort Ruger. She is already passed the worst stages of the operation and is comfortably convalescing, her boudoir being abloom with the many flowers sent her by sympathizing friends.

Miss Della Stone was hostess at an evening bridge party last week at the McDonalds.

The McKinley High School Glee Club has issued invitations for a concert which they will hold on April 2.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bailey (Alice Cooper) are expected in Honolulu on the 12th of next month. They will visit the latter's parents, Judge and Mrs. H. E. Cooper, for six or eight weeks before returning to their home in Boston. Their marriage was one of the most brilliant affairs of last summer.

After all, Honolulu folk don't keep Lent very strictly. They put up a big talk about it which doesn't really amount to anything. They are all somewhat like a certain young man of town who on New Year's made a resolution to stop smoking. On Lent coming, this young man felt that he had to give up something, so he gave up his New Year's resolution.

Mrs. Walter Kendall, who has been ill for the past two weeks with nervous prostration, is on the road to recovery, her friends will be glad to hear. In fact, she is up and around again though still not her old energetic self.

Mrs. C. G. Bartlett is one of our most charming hostesses, though lately her entertaining has been of the most informal sort. On several occasions this week she has given small luncheons of three and four—the Country Club being her favorite rendezvous. A rubber or two of bridge has generally followed.

Mr. and Mrs. John Francis Murphy of Seattle, who have been visiting in Honolulu for the past few months, will sail on the Makura Tuesday for their home in the Northern state. They are a charming couple who have won their way into Honolulu hearts—as has been more than demonstrated by the many affairs given in their honor. Mrs. Murphy has been here principally for rest, however, and so has been unable to accept many of the invitations tendered her. They are in love with Hawaii and their cottage at the Seaside, and have every intention of returning here at some future date.

Miss Rennie Catton will sail for San Francisco on the Mauna, March 31st for a month or two visit with her brother, Mr. Andrew Catton.

Mrs. E. K. Massee returned on the transport last week after six months or more in the East, where she went for her health. She has completely recovered from her recent illness, her friends will be glad to learn.

Dr. and Mrs. Ormond Wall closed their town house today and moved to Kahala where they will spend the next three or four weeks. They are the first of the social world to make the annual summer move to their country places—not including those, of course, who have lived there all the year round. With the first suggestion of hot weather the others will follow—the J. P. Cookes, the Phillips, the Ballentynes, the John Waterhouses to Kahala, the Harold Dillinghams to Mokuleia, the Fraziers, the Hockings, the Dekums to Kawaiaha, the Hoppers, the Petersons, the Willard Browns to Wahiawa, the Cookes, the Albertsons, the W. B. Caries to Lualaba, and so on indefinitely until half of this little town is living on its mountain tops and sea shores only. These little country places will be especially popular this year—now that the "tariff" is keeping at some a number of those who usually spend the hot months in the states—which will insure a lively summer at any rate, combined with the enthusiasm which the homecoming of the college students always infuses.

General and Mrs. William Carter arrived in Honolulu from Texas last week and are staying at the Young. After the first of the month, they will occupy the Henry Waterhouse place on Nuuanu avenue. They are being entertained at dinner this evening by Colonel and Mrs. J. B. McDonald, and will no doubt be considerably flattered by the rest of the social world as will permit of large affairs. Mrs. Carter is a charming hostess herself and is expected to prove a delightful addition to Honolulu society.

The friends of Mrs. Philippo Camperio, formerly Miss Eleanor Terry, daughter of Rear Admiral Silas W. Terry, formerly stationed in Hawaii, will be interested to learn of her little daughter, who was born last month in Washington.

LENTEN SERMON.

Tomorrow evening at St. Andrew's Cathedral Bishop Restarick will continue his Lenten series of sermons. The subject will be: "The Young Woman." The musical portion of the service will be sung by the united choirs consisting of fifty voices. The organist will play a number of selections after the service for those who desire to remain.
